"If he doesn't have a condom, you just have to take a deep breath and tell him to go get one."

It's not the easiest thing in the world to say.

But these days, you have to. If you're dating someone who doesn't like condoms, talk before having sex. Explain how you feel. Offer to help during the awkward moments. And if this doesn't work, ask yourself, is it worth the risk?

For more information on condoms and AIDS, call 1-800-342-AIDS for answers you can count on.

PAUL SAFONICK. Forty years a shipyard worker. He should have expected a long healthy retirement; he was told he had Asbestosis in 1961. Paul states: "My father was a coal miner and I watched him die of black lung, so I know what I'm facing. We cannot help those of us that have already been poisoned, except by informing them of their legal and medical rights, but we can keep them from taking our children and the only way to do that is by making the producers accountable for their crimes through the courts. There are those in the Congress and Senate who would deny us the right to a hearing before a jury of our peers. We will defeat them."

J. ALESSANDRO KENDALL. The three previous generations in Alessandro's father's family have been exposed to toxic substances. Three have died: one is dying. His great-grandfather died in a shipyard; his grandfather died from exposure to welding fumes; his step-grandfather died of Asbestosis, and his father has been exposed to asbestos as a seaman and shipyard worker and wants to find out if he will someday develop Asbestosis or asbestos caused cancer.
